

Mrs. Andrews New Owner Of Camas Business College

COLLEGE CHANGING HANDS—Mrs. Lucille F. Andrews, new owner of the Camas Business College, looks on as college founder T. W. Owens jots down a few notes.—Post-Record photo.

T. W. Owens, founder and owner of the Camas Business College, 302 N. E. 4th, last week announced he is turning over his school to Mrs. Lucille F. Andrews.

The change in owners will be effective July 1, although Mrs. Andrews has already taken over active participation in the business college.

Mr. Owens, who is winding up 58 active years in teaching, founded the Camas Business College 18 years ago. The first location was in the Baz building but a year and a half later the school was moved to its present offices. During that time Mr. Owens has trained hundreds of local young men and women and sent them on their way in the business world.

He said he is leaving the teaching field completely but will still maintain a part-time accounting service in Camas.

Mrs. Andrews has a background of four years as a high school commercial teacher and six years as a business college teacher. Her teaching experiences have taken her throughout Washington, Oregon, Idaho and California.

Mrs. Andrews, who came to Camas from Winthrop, Wash., is now making her home here.